"Situation Lizard" by Hannah DeVries

I wrote as I flopped onto my bed.

Jamie walked in then making us both stop talking. We shared a lot, but any of the stuff that had been going on with chameleon. She knew I used to like him, but she the things that had happened lately.

Looking at Diana

That comment sent Diana and I into a fit of laughter that lasted for about ten minutes every time one of us were able to calm down the other would start laughing and it would start all over again!

Jamie continued to look confused which did not help us to stop laughing either. Once we were finally able to calm down, I began explaining everything to her. After that night Diana and I started referring to everything that happened with Noah and I as Situation Lizard.

Weeks passed and not much happened between Noah and I. Somehow, we always ended up sitting next to each other during Bible study and I started to wonder if he was doing it intentionally. We talked when we saw each other and became pretty good friends, but I continued to deny with everything in me that I might like him, even the slightest bit. I always told Diana I would deny liking him until he asked me out. Unfortunately for me he was still as much.

The whole thing remained fairly uneventful until November came around. I had volunteered to be the counselor for the girls at a youth retreat that Pastor Da doing. The lady that had originally planned on going had gotten sick, so I offered to do it. I loved working with kids. I was even going to school to become a teacher and the retreat was over the weekend so I at I failed to realize, however, was that Noah now attended the same church as Pastor Dave.

quickly, but after the speaker talked and left it was time to take the girls back to the cabin for bed.

The next morning, we all ate breakfast together and then went out to the lake to go ice skating. Sitting on a bench, I smiled as I watched two of the littlest girls from my cabin struggling to help each other slide around on the ice in their boots.

I looked at him stunned for a second. not sure I could trust what I was hearing.

A blush started to creep its way up his neck, and it was all the answer I needed.

Then I quickly added,

He asked, but I just looked at him and laughed and with that I took off running.
